

JASON

This is exactly what I mean. Your emotions, your impulsiveness, how you fly off the handle with your first impression of everything. Your temper has been the problem with our whole relationship! Ever since we came to this great city, you have always found pleasure in hurting me. Every time I tried to learn something new or went to another interview, you were always right behind me with enough negativity that could squash el Pico Duarte! Is it any wonder I left? You're always so bitter! Even now, you cannot let things go, you keep cursing and launching threats against me and my new household. This is why you are in the situation you are in.